

Demographic Winter Talking Points

- Philip Longman, a demographer, said: "The ongoing global decline in human birthrates is the single most powerful force affecting the fate of nations and the future of society in the 21st century."
- Don Feder, a well-known columnist, said: "Abortion...worldwide, we're killing 42 million people a year. It's as if an invading army killed every man woman and child in Italy - then repeated the process every year." How influential do you think abortion is in the falling birth rates across the world? What other factors play into this epidemic?
- How does this film demonstrate the consequences of the 1960's sexual revolution?
- What are some of the ways you, personally, can be active in bringing value back to human life?
